

Brent Stewart

Brent Stewart is a professional facilitator, executive coach and award-winning speaker specializing in personal leadership development.

An experienced seminar leader and coach, he has worked with thousands of individuals across Canada and internationally since 1992. He serves as a member of the associate faculty in the Centre for Applied Leadership and Management at Royal Roads University, teaching personal leadership, ethics, coaching and teamwork, and is a seasoned facilitator of the renowned Pursuit of Excellence program, an intensive four-day seminar that deals with attitude, personal accountability, win/win strategy, relationships, and effective communications.

Prior to becoming a seminar leader and coach, Brent had a successful career in management and sales. He received extensive sales training at Xerox, where he handled major accounts and won the top award for corporate presentation skills. His management experience includes 7 years with Dickie Dee Ice Cream, a national ice cream company, where he held the position of General Manager. As General Manager, he led a fast growing organization with over one hundred franchises across the country.

In 1999 Brent formed his own company, MasterLink International, to bring together business leaders from the U.S. fiber optics industry into leadership forums. Since that time he has worked across a wide range of industries, offering leadership seminars and executive coaching. In 2010 he co-founded Leadscape Learning, a global provider of leadership programs and training videos. Brent is a graduate of the Coaches Training Institute and holds a Master's degree in Leadership.
